PUBLIC SCHOOL WORK.

VOL. VIII.

The quarterly examination of the various classes in our Public Schools have been in progress this week, and will conclude to-day, after which there will be a vacation of one school week. The examinations show commendable improvement and efficiency in all the departments. The results will be reported to parents in a few days. One of the examinations, on Wednesday, was that of the 4th Class, High School, in Ancient History. The result was in most respects very satisfactory. The questions embraced the most important facts in the history of Rome, from its traditional foundation until the decline of the republic. The questions were written upon the blackboard, and the members of the class required to give answers in writing, without the aid of books or notes. In October last, when this branch of study was taken up, there was a Crassus, Pompey, and Gesar. difficulty in awakening interest, in fact, quite the reverse of enthusiasm in the class, owing, possibly, to the manner in which the subject of sucient history is treated in text books. One of the School Trustees who chanced to be present at a recitation undertook, with the co-operation of the Principal and pupils, to devise some changes in the mode of study, the effect of which began to manifest itself at once. The examination shows excellent results, not one of the class having failed to give evidence of this class.
